I have had a rough few weeks after the holidays and I am trying to get back on track , now it seems my school work has suffered this week. I have learned a little on the git command not enough to set up my git with terminal. I have created my project cs files and will start coding . I have great confidence I will complete my project by week three and having the late start does not help me. I do look forward to this class and will work hard.

I feel this was the biggest stumbling block for the first week. The Coding was easy and I had trouble getting my Git Repository set up properly but I now have it all set up. I have also gotten the git codes down, for push, pull, add, commit.
